History and Heritage

Imagine Strathcona County's yester-year

- What do we know about Indigenous people's history for this region?
- Why did early settlers move here?
- Why is our municipality both urban and rural—city and country?

Explore these three special features to learn about Strathcona County's history.

From time to time

An interactive online storymap

This innovative historical timeline helps students visualize how Strathcona County has evolved to what we see today. Featuring a selection of carefully curated images paired with researched accounts of history, the timeline highlights settler life in this region and includes some of the challenges that threatened Indigenous ways of living. A large print display is also available.

The past where we live

A two-part video series

- A rich and plentiful country gives an overview of this region's history.
Time: 11 minutes
- A specialized municipality explores Strathcona County's name, its boundaries and how it came to be a specialized municipality.
Time: 9 minutes

Rural history from the skies

An online image gallery

These archival aerial photographs taken between 50 and 100 years ago offer a bird's eye view of the countryside. You can survey Strathcona County's early rural landscape from a vantage rarely, if ever, seen by its residents back in the day.

At Strathma, students see themselves as history makers...

Exhibits and visible labs become the classroom during facilitated curriculum-based activities, giving learners a holistic understanding of the stories that shape Strathcona County. Students will engage with hands-on history and see their world through the eyes of a museum.

School Garden Program

School gardens are a place where students can learn about growing and eating healthy food. Through hands-on learning, teachers help students connect with the plant life cycle, while learning about seeds, soil, sun, water, bugs and weeds.

Each participating school receives two raised garden beds, soil and seeds (courtesy of Salisbury Greenhouse) to get started, with opportunity for expansion over time. The program entered its ninth year in 2023 with 24 schools participating, from elementary to high school.

School gardens inspire creativity and wonder. Kindergartners learn that fresh-picked spinach is sweet and tasty, and that good nutrition helps grow muscles, like Popeye. High school students incorporate growing and harvesting vegetables and herbs into their culinary arts program. In the fall, harvest soups made with root vegetables are ways teachers and students celebrate growing food.

Are you wondering how to start a garden program at your school? Contact Recreation, Parks and Culture today for more information.
